

The Imperial Ceremony

--Woodmanor
In a thrilling announcement the Imperial Steward has made it known that on the Occasion of the Feast of St. Micheal on the New Year our most Righteous Prince, His Imperial Highness Gendon Richard Araman Enderin Elsorja shall be confirmed in anointment and coronation as His Majesty Emperor of all Eyrie His Luminance the 48th of the name.

The announcement is long anticipated and welcome. This reporter has noted that the local inns have already filled, and even persons of rank are having a difficult time finding room at the palace itself.

It is further revealed that plans are that the event shall be televised. A first ever.

We look forward to a new age of stability and prosperity under the righteous rule of our good Emperor, may the gods save him.

things to which the gentle reader should not be exposed to.

Is it enough that we might ask the means by which this man of questionable character was able to rise to prominence in the Church of Angels. We the pious public deserve an answer as to how those persons sworn to be chaste and righteous guardians of the community morals can be reduced to such perfidy. We the public await the answer of the Church.

A Question

We the virtuous women of the city once again call upon our Righteous Prince of the City to outlaw the perfidious practice of prostitution. An immoral trade that preys upon the female and male alike. Decried by both Church and goodly people of all classes this foul sale of womens' flesh is a continued comfort to those that prey upon the poor and the unlawful slave trade, equally as heinous.

One need only examine the pages of this paper to see the harm done. The news recently of illegal slaves held against their will, forced into unspeakable acts of carnal perversion. Yet the author of this crime against woman and nature has not been seen in the dock of the court to answer for these infamous acts.

Our fair city prospers under the rule of its just and goodly Prince so favored of the Unicorn. Knowing that He is above all mere mercantile interests and seeking only for the good of all, we again call upon him to outlaw this malodorous and immoral practice.

Indignity!

We protest the indignity and wrong suffered by the people of the city of Seahaven in the late war of succession.

Our businesses and homes have been damaged and lives lost. Our harbor is still clogged with the hull of the HMS Warspite and the unburied dead that lie unhallowed within her hull.

We call upon the Empire to make good its promise of relief of the damages and loss from this unwarranted attack. We also call upon the Prince to carry our cause forward and to make right the damages to his city and the losses suffered by loyal subjects.

Still there remain within the city businesses closed due to damaged on that heinous night Widows and orphans bereft of the support of husbands and fathers. Widowers and children bereft of the comfort of wives and mothers. A war the subjects of the nation did not seek or desire, but were indeed the chief victims thereof.

Therefore we again call on the Empire to make good these damages before the celebration of victory to come. To enter into the new reign with clean hands and a clear heart to the Loyal Subjects of the Realms.

Woman Scares Five Tramps

A woman the name of Gregory, who keeps a small farm off of Old West Road yesterday afternoon went to her door and found five tramps there. They demanded something to eat.

She slammed the door and went to a window, where she told the the men they would have to go elsewhere unless they came to the house one at a time, and took turns at her table. They declined to agree to this arrangement and swore they would batter in the door if she did not comply with their wish. The woman then replied that she had three dogs in the house, a rifle, and two pistols., and that she would shoot if the men did not leave the place.

Suiting action to the word, she released a bulldog, and when the fellows saw him coming out the of the door they fled to the woods leaving Mrs. Gregory master of the Situation.

The Managing Housewife

The man who has the good fortune to select a good prudent managing woman for his wife has great cause to rejoice. Many sore troubles will be warded off by her careful foresight, her excellent judgment. She is better than riches, for she brings happiness with her. She does everything well, and knows exactly what is wanted in her household. She either does her work herself, or looks closely after those to whom she entrusts it. She is an unfailing housekeeper, and is never better pleased than when engaged in some domestic duty. She is not ashamed that people should know she soils her hands in providing for the comfort of her husband and children. But she would be ashamed of idleness and abashed if her family were left to shift for themselves.

She has the faculty of making the best of every thing. If poverty pinches, the managing woman soon finds some contrivance for easing the smart. She conceals the

Her rooms are so arranged that the patches, and the rents (carefully sewn together and the marks of indigence, shall be hidden from the curious eye. She turns her linen outside in and inside out, until every part of it is worn away. She throws away nothing until all the use and wear have been got out of it that ingenuity can devise. She keeps house so cheaply that even single young men live in a costly manner by comparison. Not all the money in the world, in the hands of a bad manager could make home so happy as a little in the hands of the woman who is sagacious, thrifty, and judicious. She finds time for everything she has to do, and a place for everything in her possession. She is self-reliant, shrewd in observation, discerning in estimating character. She seldom fails in anything she undertakes, simply because she goes about it in the right way.

The managing woman is apt to be a little sharp with dull people, for anything in the nature of stupidity seems unnatural to her. She has no sympathy with it. Her daughters, if she have any are they the good managers like herself. These girls would profit a discount in the matrimonial market. They are sought after, and men of judgment know how to prize and value them. Her influence is always acting, even when she is not personally doing. Happiness seems to spring up in her pathway - her example is precious to all who approach her, and the love and reverence with which she is regarded no pen can describe. Her discipline may be strict, but is it salutary, and the children are the better for it. She has learnt the art which few of us know how to practice - the art of guiding rightly, and yet giving pleasure. Even-tempered, methodical; firm, yet pleasant; grave, yet cheerful; busy, yet graceful, of her the wise man truly says "strength and honor are her clothing"

A Religious Scandal

It has come to the attention of this journalist that certain of the late Archbishop Mendoza LaQueria's practices are in question as to their propriety in regards to the teachings and dogma of the Church of Angels. To wit; that he has held a property in the Old City for the pursuit of carnal excess.

Certain private parties have contacted us with this supposition, and provided adequate proof that we are willing, abet with reluctance for the dignity of the office, to report these alleged activities. A certain soiled dove whom we will call Eve has sworn that she on occasion has been hired to perform her profession at his alleged property, and that the late Archbishop Mendoza LaQueria, and other important persons were in attendance as well. She not being the only professional present that they were engaged and indeed coupled in carnal exercise with these men of stature. Furthermore all manner of immoral acts are preformed including the aforementioned as well and drunkenness and other

The Lightning's

On the night of Air 3.12 at about 18th hour lightning struck the chimney on the east end of my house, knocking the top off, tearing off part of the gable end, and running down the studding next the chimney, tearing up part of the hearth and scattering the brickbats, timber, mortar, etc. over the room, breaking out the glass of the windows and scattering it all over the room. Mr. M.B. McGinty and T. A. Chapman were sitting at the table writing, about six feet from the fireplace, and were both thrown back from the table and badly shocked. Chapman received a slight wound on his face from some of the timbers. Mr. McGinty was also shocked and received a cut on the back of the head, but neither were seriously hurt. Mr. N.S. Eaves was lying on a bed in the corner of the room with his head within four feet of the scantling that was entirely torn out by the lightning, and was considerably shelled by brick-bats and mortar; but his head being protected by the head-board of the bedstead was hurt very little. J. M. Cook and A.L Eaves were lying on a bed in the room, where they were covered up by splinters and dust. Splinters were also stuck in the ceiling of the room all about. John Colvin Hillburn was sitting on the bed in the opposite corner from Mr. Eaves, and when he came to himself he was on the floor. R.P. Eaves was on the bed with Hillburn, but received no injury at all. The lamp on the table between McGinty and Chapman was put out and a hole made through the lamp chimney. There were twelve in the other part of the house. I can but feel grateful to a merciful Providence that no one was killed, or severely hurt, which under the circumstances is remarkable.

We give below the remarks of the Abba City Recorder on the shooting of Jodo, and the verdict of the Magistrates' Court of Abba City.

An unfortunate difficulty occurred in this city on Air 2.27, about the 9th hour, in which Jodo, of this place, was mortally wounded by pistol shots fired by Sollin Billingfoot, of Seahaven. Jodo died at the 22nd hour on the same day. The telegrams from this city, published in the Telegraph and Messenger Air 2.28, to the effect that the difficulty was owing to an old grudge, is a mistake. The deceased, Jodo, was a half-Orc, over six feet in height and powerfully built. He was regarded as a dangerous man, especially when drinking. He killed Kelsey Tuttle in this city a few years ago. Mr. Billingfoot is a Hobbit and will hardly weigh 45 pounds. Mr. B. is a quiet, peaceable gentleman, and regrets as much as any one could the necessity that occasioned the unfortunate tragedy. The verdict was as follows: Abba City Ivenshire - We, a Magistrates' court appointed by the Empire, summoned and sworn by same, to hold an inquest over the remains of Jodo, find that he came to his death from a pistol shot wound from the hands of Sollin Billingfoot, and after a careful investigation we find that the killing was in self defense.

Mr. Sollin Billingfoot has been returned to his home this last week and did not wish to make comment.

An Opinion

It has come to the attention of this correspondent that the lower classes of the Old City have of late been uppity in their assumptions of place and power. We have gutter snipes pretending to the affairs of Nobles and Peers of the land. People with no blood and no breeding cannot come to any decent and moral end in such circumstances. The very meanness of their birth unfortunately leaves them useful for little but menial work. The Angels will well witness that indeed such work needs doing and is valuable to society. We would never dream of belittling the work of the lower classes. However it is plain to all right thinking persons that those born to low estate are best to remain there, and that any pretense to the Noble Estate is bound to doom them to a life of carnal excess and drunkenness.

We call on the Prince of the City to put aside these flawed goods and look to the Cream of the Blood for his positions of influence and power. the city can only be better served.
